Area Officials See Signs of Economic Growth

On April 16, Bridgeton Area Chamber of Commerce hosted local leaders at Terrigno's Fairfield Inn, as they talked about signs of economic progress across the region. Municipal mayors and the CCIA President talked about growth in the area, improving the tax base, opportunities for quality jobs, and raising of income levels, all balanced with preservation of our farming industry, and maintaining abundant open spaces we currently enjoy.

Mayor Albert Kelly of Bridgeton said industrial growth including warehousing, cold storage, and cannabis industry, retail development, and new residential development have recently occurred and more is on the drawing boards. He added that the city park and zoo, will see improvements like beautification of the former landfill in the park, new pickleball courts, to serve residents and visitors, whose numbers are growing as they discover the natural beauty and amenities in the park. New sidewalks, lighting, and trees will be added downtown this spring and summer.

Mayor Robin Freitag of Hopewell Township cited renewal of and continued growth of the township's retail destination, the Greater Bridgeton Amish Market, other retail growth along Shiloh Pike, interest in the township-owned business park, and the beginning of construction of high speed, broadband internet infrastructure throughout the whole township.

"Thanks to the years of work by former township committee leaders Greg Facemyer and Paul Ritter, Hopewell is one of the first municipalities in New Jersey to get funding for and to build its own broadband infrastructure to give every household, business, and school the opportunity to purchase high speed internet service. Mayor Freitag echoed Mayor Kelly, about the importance of parks and open space, citing the township's park, including the recently dedicated Hankins Family Picnic area.

Mayor Jim Crilley and Township Administrator Roy Spoltore of Upper Deerfield pointed to economic growth continuing in the township, particularly along Rt. 77, and at Carlls Corner. Mayor Crilley said a Sweden-based company, SIKKA USA, has announced that it will build its U.S. East Coast Anchor facility in Upper Deerfield on over 100 acres they purchased. Construction should begin in July 2024 with as many as 80 new jobs for the area.

He said the benefits of township's large redevelopment zone that includes all infrastructure and rail access, is attracting interest from businesses, including manufacturing, cold storage, and warehousing.

Spoltore talked about residential developments that are approved, under construction, and about to start construction, that will add many units and residents to the area. All of this is balanced with large areas that are permanently preserved for agriculture, and thousands of acres that are zoned for agriculture, and are under cultivation, that should help maintain the township's open spaces and agriculture base.

Lawrence Township Mayor Skip Bowman highlighted growth in his area and talked about the township's redevelopment area that runs along the OmniTrax, Winchester Western railroad. The township owned several hundred acres and in partnership with private owners, they hope to attract warehousing and other development that needs rail service and large lots, but is not reliant on public water and sewer, which the township does not have available at this time.

Leaders talk about a better economy. Left-right: Upper Deerfield representatives Roy Spoltore and Mayor Jim Crilley, Bridgeton's Mayor Albert Kelly, Hopewell's Mayor Robin Freitag, Dawn Bascelli of Deerfield, Jerry Velazquez of The Authority, Lawrence's Mayor Skip Bowman, and Chamber Member Services Director Laurie LaTorre.

Deerfield Township Administrator Dawn Bascelli, who attended on behalf of Mayor Abigail Perlstein O'Brien, explained the township's economic growth, much coming from long-time existing businesses that are expanding, like F & S Fresh Produce, and the expansion of its agriculture foundation with two active vineyards and wineries, Terra Nonno and Cedar Rose. There has also been growth around the county solid waste complex, which provides a host benefit to the township which helps support the budget. She stressed that Deerfield strives to balance economic growth with maintaining its rural, agriculture-centered lifestyle.

Don Daigle of Charles Schwab, Vineyard-Millville, sponsor of the Chamber's April meeting, talks about his business and its investment services.

Jerry Velazquez, President and CEO of Cumberland County Improvement Authority, provided a county-wide perspective. He said The Authority continues its role in attracting new business, in managing municipal and county construction projects, and in running a state-of-the-art solid waste and recycling complex.

Rowan College of South Jersey - Business Partner

On May 14, the Chamber's luncheon meeting at Green Olive Restaurant, featured a presentation from James Piccone, Vice President of Rowan College of South Jersey about the ways the college is partnering with businesses to strengthen the workforce, to educate employees, and to retain our young people here. The meeting included a scholarship presentation to Lesly Hernandez, a graduating senior from Cumberland County Technical Education Center. She received $1,000 cash award to further her education co-presented by the Chamber Foundation, South Jersey Water Conditioning Service, Sungenis Insurance Agency, and Members First Federal Credit Union. This and two other $1,000 scholarships were presented this year in memory of the late David Wilson and Nancy Sungenis, outstanding Chamber, business, and community leaders.

Piccone explained the college's partnership with Rowan University that allows students and their families to save thousands of dollars in tuition and other fees, while earning a Rowan University degree. Like Lesly Hernandez, many high school students are earning valuable college credits while attending high school. Rowan College of South Jersey also offers education and training with no cost to qualified area businesses or their employees. Employees of Bridgeton Area Chamber member businesses are eligible for discounted education. Contact the Chamber office or Rowan College of South Jersey for more information on these benefits.

Spotlight on Businesses in Hopewell, Shiloh & Stow Creek

The Bridgeton Area Chamber of Commerce and Cumberland Development Corporation presented a free business information and networking meeting at Frightened Turtle Winery at Sunny Slope Farms on May 8. The meeting, sponsored by Newfield National Bank, featured presentations from area businesses, and Hopewell Township.

Mayor Freitag and David Hemple, Chairman of Hopewell Economic Development Committee, talked about business and community progress in the township. Kathleen Valla, Sr. Executive VP of Newfield National Bank, talked about banking issues at the meeting. Newfield National Bank was the sponsor of this meeting and they were the first business in the Hopewell Business Park.

Jason Riehl, one of the new owners of the Greater Bridgeton Amish Farm Market in Hopewell spoke about the improvements and future plans for the market which is a destination for people from across South Jersey.

Nikki Halter, owner of Nikki Halter Photography, commented on her business located in Stow Creek. Tony Stanzone and Laurie LaTorre spoke on behalf of G & M Nursery and Stable Landscaping who were spotlighted at this meeting. Ron Thomas, co-owner of Frightened Turtle Vineyard and Winery at Sunny Slope Farms, highlighted the development of this new business, its operations, and plans. Susan Nardelli of Rowan College of South Jersey provided tips for using social media to promote your business.

Chamber's 30th Golf Tournament on June 26

Just over 100 golfers gathered at Centerton Golf Club on June 26 to support the Chamber's 30th Annual Golf Tournament. It was a hot summer day with a cool outcome: business connections, fun, food, beverages, friendly competition, prizes, and about $25,000 was raised for the Chamber. Thanks to the support of sponsors, golfers, board members, members, and volunteers, including event co-chairs Chris Jespersen and Eric Sjogren.

Business to Business Meeting at Library

The Chamber and its Hispanic Business Committee presented a Business to Business (B2B) meeting at Bridgeton Public Library on April 8. It was an opportunity for business people and the community to meet at the library and to learn first-hand about the many services it provides to the community.

Adaria Armstrong (left) of Bridgeton Public Library, with B2B meeting sponsor and Chamber Board member, Joseph Cortez of Bridgeton Onized Federal Credit Union.

The meeting was sponsored by Bridgeton Onized Federal Credit Union that also made a contribution to the library at the meeting to support the good work the library does for the community. The Chamber provides a free Chamber membership to support the library.

Love Where You Live

Bridgeton Area Chamber of Commerce Foundation is administering the Love Where You Live program. Thanks to a commitment of a significant contribution to this program over the next five years, to be matched by other contributions from for-profit businesses, civic-minded individuals, and non-profit organizations, it is hoped that we will see an increase in community pride, and involvement.

The program's goal is to be a transformative force, to elevate and amplify the good that is already being done in the area to facilitate a positive perception of the area for those living here and those outside the area, and to empower citizens, businesses, organizations, and others in the community to effect positive change.

The Chamber Foundation and its Love Where You Live Committee will soon announce a grant program called "Beacons of Pride" to help fund beautification and other projects on public land or mainly public facing property. Message from Chamber President Barry Seay

Barry Seay of South Jersey Water Conditioning Service is President of the Bridgeton Area Chamber of Commerce.

To our members, I can't thank you enough for supporting the Chamber and working together with our board, staff, and supporters to make our economy and our Chamber stronger and our community better. My thanks to Eric Sjogren and Chris Jespersen, co-chairs, and all who helped, attended, or sponsored the Chamber Golf Tournament on June 26. You helped make the Chamber stronger.

This summer, please support the Chamber and Chamber Foundation fundraisers including our Phillies Suite Raffle, Summer Party at Terra Nonno on July 26, and Dog Days of Summer on August 13.

We are excited to launch the renewed Love Where You Live project soon. On Sept. 26, working with our partner Chambers in the county, we present a fall business kickoff with the Cumberland County Business Expo and Job Fair.

Get involved. Help us do more. Join the Chamber if you are not a member – www.CumberlandGrows.com/Join.

Upper Deerfield Day was celebrated in April, Sussex Irrigation opened on Rt. 77 in Seabrook, and South Jersey Eye Association welcomed Dr. Samantha A. Miletta to the SJEA family in June.
